Legislation looking to the development of the Great Falls power project may become an acute issue in the new

. Senator Norris of Nebraska, "for years the advocate of the development of the Great Falls project, is anxious to have steps taken in Congress toward the consummation of this plan.

"I shall bring up the Great Falls matter any time that I see any prospect for doing anything," said Senntor Norris. "I have long been of the opinfon that the best unused power there should be developed for the benefit of this community." Senator Norris is hopeful that conditions in the new Congress may be favorable for getting serious consideration of Great Falls. While the war was on, it was impossible to do so because of the necessity of centering expenditures as far as possible on actual war needs.

One of the measures which the Rapublican leaders in the House will seek to get passed in the new Congress is the water power bill. While passage of this would not necessarily have anything to do with Great Falls, the fact the leaders want the subject of water power development considered indicates that the time may be not far distant when Senstor Norrris can get a real hearing.

the Senate Military Affairs Committee. who legram to Secretary of War Bake, at San Francisco, demanded that Lieutenant Colonel Ansell's reply to Judge Advocate General Crowder's recent criticism of him be made public, today received a reply from the Secretary of War. Beyond admitting that he had heard from the Secretary. Senator Chamberlain refused to make any comment. "I will have something to say later." he asserted. The Ansell-Crowder controversy arose after Ansell, then acting judge advocate general, testified before Senate Military Affairs Commis declaring that the system of a tering military justice had
